IS IT SO?

At the crowded counter the lady sits,
Awaiting the shop-maid's haughty stare,
While the latter backward and forward flits,
And warbles a popular comic air.
She laughs at the customer's lack of "style,"
While showing the goods with a noise and clatter.
And says to herself, with a scornful smile,
"It's only a woman—it doesn't matter!"

His dyed mustaches are neatly waxed;
Like shining ebony gleams his hat;
The skill of his tailor was greatly taxed
Before he produced a suit like that.
He asks for gloves. O isn't he grand?
She shows him dozens—she's more than willing.
As she whispers the maiden near at hand:
"O isn't he sweet? He's just too killing!"
—N. Y. Sun.

What Napoleon Ate.

The supply of fresh provisions was derived from Brazil and the Cape of Good Hope, and as the sheep and cattle had to endure a long voyage, they arrived at St. Helena lean and out of order and never fattened after landing, as the island furnished no means of restoring them to condition. The flesh was invariably tasteless, sometimes even quite unwholesome. St. Helena furnished no game. A few red partridges and pheasants arrived twice or thrice a year. Chinese pigs alone arrived fat and lovely, and M. Chandeller reports favorably of them. He says that their flesh was delicious, and that it gave him infinite pleasure to prepare pork griskins, sausages and black pudding, of all of which Napoleon was very fond. Fish was scarce, none of the European kind visiting the island. Oysters, crabs, lobsters or any kind of shell-fish were not to be had. Only two kinds of fish were at all tolerable: one is what the French called the "bonne femme," and the other, which is long, like an eel, but not thicker than the little finger, is called the needle fish. The only fruit of any value was the banana. This he utilized in fritters or iced with rum. The climate was so variable that neither citron nor oranges could ripen; grapes and apricots never come to maturity; apples, pears and peaches were as bad.

Napoleon's breakfast consisted of sorrel pottage, or any other refreshing pottage, breasts of mutton boned and well grilled, served with a clear gravy, a roast chicken or two griskins and sometimes a plate of pulse. For dinner he had a pottage, a remove, two entrees, a roast and two side dishes of sweetmeats or pastry, of which he was very fond. This was always served on plate. The removes used to puzzle M. Chandeller, for he often had nothing for the purpose but large pieces of beef, mutton or fresh pork, with sometimes (by a happy chance) a goose, a turkey or a sucking pig. Madeira, Tenerife and Constantia were the wines supplied to the suite of the Emperor. His own drink was claret, and of that he drank very moderately.

Napoleon's cook is particular to record in these "Reminiscences" what dishes his master preferred. Roasted fowls, pullets minced "a la Marengo," "a l'italienne," "a la Provencale," without garlic, fricasseed fowls sometimes done in champagne, which was very dear on the island, as much as twenty shillings a bottle. He liked puddings "a la Richelieu," but above all, he preferred sweet things and pastry, such as "vol-au-vent," "petites bouches a la reine" and little cakes of macaroni prepared in various ways. The cook was unable (he relates) with much sorrow to make these as good as he ought, because the macaroni, though sent from Naples, grew stale on the passage, as did the Parmesan. As Napoleon's health grew worse he was more difficult to please, and poor M. Chandeller found his skill and ingenuity taxed to do this. —N. O. Times-Democrat.

A Fable.

A Lobster who had, by years of patient toil and careful economy, accumulated a snug sum of money, cast about him to see how he could use it to deserve the gratitude of the public. He first consulted the Clam, and that Bivalve solemnly puckered his mouth and said: "Good idea, my friend, good idea. You can't do better than to leave your money to found a school of philosophy for Clams. We'll take it and keep your memory green for a thousand years."

The Fox was next consulted, and he slapped the Lobster on the back and cried out:

"That's the ticket, old man—leave that cash to the Foxes! What we want to make us happy is a dictionary and an eye-glass for each Fox."

The Peacock was found at home, and when the subject was broached she laid her hand on her heart and said:

"Old Lob, your head is level. Leave that money to the Peacocks, and in less than six months we'll show you seven new styles of gracefully avoiding a spotted cow in the highway. Give us that cash and we shall want for nothing more."

The Codfish was found posting up his account books, and when informed of the Lobster's mission he laid down his pen and replied:

"You have come to the right adviser, my friend. It is needless to inform you that for the last hundred years the Cod has had to stay under the water most of the time on account of having no fit clothes to appear on shore. With that money we can rag out with the best hold our heads with the highest, and we will no longer be quoted in market at a lower figure than rusty pork and stringy beef."

The Lion wanted the money given to the feline race so that it might buy its potatoes and cabbage in open market, instead of stealing them.

The Buzzard didn't want to seem avaricious at all, but he had long thought that some philanthropist would make a great hit by leaving a fund to provide Buzzards with glass eyes and toothache remedies.

Bewildered and discouraged by his interviews, the Lobster at last appealed to the Owl for a candid opinion.

"Well, if I had a pile of money and wanted to do something to please the public," replied the Owl, "I'd whack up with my poor relations and pay up my outlawed debts."

MORAL.

"But they never do."—Detroit Free Press.

—A small space of ground near the main entrance of Castle Garden settled a few days ago and disclosed the mouth of a tunnel or sewer-like passage leading toward the old fort. It was constructed and used in the war of 1812 and had long ago been forgotten. —N. Y. Herald.

—A provision broker of Chicago, in conversation with a New Yorker, speaking of the stagnation in business, said: "Why, it is a positive fact that there are less than two hundred thousand dressed hogs in Chicago to-day." The friend replied in astonishment: "Why, I thought your population something over half a million." —Boston Traveller.

—Some persons in England keep a coal rake in the bed-room to drive away nightmare, or as a preservative against the incubus. "If the rake is placed in the bed, with the teeth upward, we should think it would prevent nightmare every time. The fact that it would also prevent sleep might operate against the remedy to some extent." —Norristown Herald.

THE Catlettsburg Democrat says: The statement going the rounds of the press to the effect of that Judge Brown had said he would not ask for troops to be sent to Grayson, at the trial of Neal and Craft, is unauthorized by Judge Brown, who has never directly or indirectly made any such statements. If troops are demanded and sent which we believe will be done, there is no necessity to increase the number sent, here at the October term of our court. That number is more than would be necessary to repel any mob that could be organized in this section.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain it effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER,

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District.
ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan., 20, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours,
P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880.

B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great.
Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO. Enosburgh Falls, Vermont. j27d.

MRS. CATHERINE DUNN, the mother of Miss Mary Dunn, is reported to be very ill to-day.

MR. CHARLES DAWSON, has been appointed a night policeman. He will be on duty in the business part of the city.

A REWARD of $100 has been offered for the apprehension of "Col." Crawford, who killed Penn Lyons at Springdale on Christmas day.

BEGINNING with Monday next, the evening passenger train of the K. O. R. R., will change its leaving time to 12:40 p. m., instead of one o'clock, as heretofore.

EVERYBODY should go and see Uncle Tom's Cabin on Monday afternoon and night at Washington Opera House. Anthony & Ellis' Ideal Uncle Tom's Cabin Company is said to be the best in the world.

PERRY JEFFERSON will be sworn into office as sheriff next Saturday and on the following Monday will enter upon his duties. His deputies Dan. Perrine, Chan. Jefferson and John W. Alexander, will be sworn in at the same time. Mr. Alexander's appointment will not interfere with his livery business.

THE marriage of Miss Annie Connor Phister, daughter of Hon. E. C. Phister, to Mr. Charles Field Griffin, of New York, was solemnized at the Church of the Nativity yesterday morning in the presence of a large number of friends of the contracting parties, the Rev. W. D. Powers officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Griffin left for New York at noon the same day by rail. They have the best wishes of a host of friends in Maysville.

THE I. O. W. M. held their meeting for the election of officers for the ensuing six months, on the 27th inst., and selected the following:

President—W. E. Stalcup.
Vice President—J. H. Smart.
Rec. Secretary—J. L. Daulton.
Fin. Secretary—P. W. Wheeler.
Conductor—M. Hutcheson.
Treasurer—Dr. T. H. N. Smith.
Inner Guard—Fred Dressell.
Outside Guard—Thomas Wood.

Immediately after the election the members sat down to an excellent supper at Traxel's, prepared in Mr. T.'s best style, and which was heartily enjoyed by all.

UNDER the management of the ladies of Lewisburg Baptist Church the cantata of New Year's Eve was given at their church on last Thursday evening. The young ladies all performed their parts exceedingly well and it would be invidious to notice specially any where all did so well. The singing was remarkably good, and in their pretty costumes, the young ladies were just too sweet for anything. In spite of the very dark night the house was full. By their frequent applause the audience expressed their pleasure at the performance and seemed universally to regret that it was not longer.

A Fall of Real Running Water.

The production of remarkable scenic effects on the American stage is attaining a wonderful degree of perfection, and among these nothing is more beautiful and effective than the introduction of a real water fall, the water dashing over the rocks in the most realistic manner, and eliciting unbounded admiration. This novel feature is only one of the marvelous scenic effects used in the presentation of Uncle Tom's Cabin by Anthony & Ellis's World Famous Double Mammoth Ideal Uncle Tom's Cabin Company, which will appear here at Washington opera house on Monday afternoon and night. Among the numerous attractions are a pack of Siberian bloodhounds, a knowing donkey, a pony, two Topsy's, and the renowned Memphis University Students. These colored artists have called forth unbounded enthusiasm and encore after encore is accorded them every evening. No lover of music can afford to miss hearing them, and a crowded house, we are sure, will enjoy this unsurpassed dramatic attraction. The double Topsy is another prominent feature and the songs and dances of the two elicit nightly rounds of applause and shouts of laughter. Seats should be secured early. A word to the wise is sufficient. This company soon goes to Europe.

Hon. Jos. D. Pickett.

Capt. Sam M. Gains, in a late letter to the South Kentuckian, pays a high tribute to the character and capacity of Hon. Jos. D. Pickett. He says:

He is a scholar in the broadest and fullest sense of the word, and upon this foundation made in early life he has erected a superstructure of qualifications in the shape of twenty years of experience as a teacher in several of the best colleges and universities in the South. He is not only a man of broad and accurate scholarship, and a teacher of long experience with a practical knowledge of the management of schools and the needs of our system, but he possesses executive ability of a high order. All who have had opportunities to know the truth will corroborate these statements.

He also makes the following comment on Prof. Pickett's late report:

Any competent judge, after examining it, will agree with me in the opinion that it is in reality the best report—such as is contemplated and required by law—that has been given to the public during the last twelve years. It is a work that is destined to live. Coming from such hands it cannot fail to do this, for in ability, energy and conscientious devotion and application to duty Superintendent Pickett is not surpassed by any other state officer. What I have said may sound to those who do not know Mr. Pickett, like praise, but it is simply an uncolored representation of his ability, fidelity and fitness for the office, and of the character of the work which he has performed. Having had excellent opportunities to inform myself in regard to these matters, I speak confidently, advisedly—in simple justice to a thoroughly accomplished and most faithful public servant.

The Champion Eater.

The Independent Order of Workingmen of this city gave a supper Wednesday evening last, on which occasion one of the weak members (whose name by request is withheld) laid siege to and devoured the following viands, viz:

Seven dishes chicken salad; six dishes fried oysters; seven and one-half dishes scalloped oysters; three saucers of ice cream; four large pieces of cake; two quails on toast; two dishes of ham (old Kentucky); one dish of turkey; one box of sardines; sixteen glasses of sherry and champagne wine; twelve stalks of celery; six slices of bread; one bowl of crackers; three saucers of Metropolitan cream, and three large egg kisses.

The brother has not since been heard from, but we presume is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances. We call the attention of the sick committee specially to this case.

The Marshalls.

Maysville Eagle.

A recent issue of the DAILY BULLETIN contains an article one of the heading of which is—"The Chief Justice's Pecuniary Misfortunes"—meaning Jno. Marshall. It is calculated to create a false impression. Chief Justice Marshall accumulated and left to his descendants a very large estate. He and his younger brother, James, at one time owning a great part of the estate of Lord Fairfax, which they purchased from the heirs of that eccentric nobleman. At one time the two brothers also owned a large part of the Genesee Valley of New York, but gave it up to pay the debts of Robert Morris, whose daughter James Marshall had married. The article purports to have been based on information derived from a son of Jas. Marshall, presumably Henry. He is mistaken in saying that Col. Thomas Marshall brought his son Thomas to Kentucky with him. Col. Thomas Marshall came to Kentucky for final settlement in 1785. Captain Marshall did not come until 1790, neither his father nor any member of the family being with him at the time. Gen. Humphrey Marshall was a great-grand-son as well as the great-grand-nephew of Col. Thomas Marshall.

A Shop Girl's Christmas Gift.

From the Chicago News.

Last Saturday afternoon in one of the retail houses on State street, which was thronged with eager people who seemed intent upon being served at once, a lady whose attire and purchases indicated that she was one of affluence, had made her final selection at a counter from a saleslady whose face showed too plainly how tired she was.

"Is that all?" asked the weary-looking girl, whose life was hemmed up in ribbons and laces.

"Not all," replied the lady of wealth. "I want to speak to you." And she drew the white face of the worn clerk over to her own and kissed the thin lips.

"That's for you," she said, "for I know you must be tired." And the poor, tired girl turned her face back to the wares she had been handling all day, and put her thin hands up to her eyes.

Dr. Wild, of Toronto, announces that Adam was seven feet high. His reason for this conclusion is that the first man was perfect, and seven is a perfect number "Three is the Trinity number and stands for the Creator; four stands for the world; thus seven includes the Creator and the created. Seven means completion. There are seven virtues that make a perfect man—virtue knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity."

PITH AND POINT.

"Mamma, I want to see what is in that box." "There isn't anything in it, Tom." "Oh, then I want to see what there isn't in it."

—There is an old adage that if enough rope is given to a fool he will hang himself with it, but it appears that ever since the world began there is a scarcity of rope.

—She went into a shop to buy some toilet soap, and while the shopman was expatiating on its merits, about made up her mind to purchase, but when he said it would keep off chaps she said she didn't want that kind.—Our Continent.

—The Post-office Department has ruled that a husband has no control over the correspondence of his wife, but this decision will not prevent a man from carrying his wife's letter in his inside coat pocket three weeks before mailing it.—Detroit Free Press.

—"How are you, Brown?" exclaimed Fenderson. "I have been on a regular wild-goose chase, and I'm glad I found you at last." Fenderson supposed he must have said something pretty smart, the way the people around him laughed, but he can't for the life of him tell what it was.—Boston Post.

—Legal adviser (drawing up the old gentleman's will): "Um—seems a pity you should cut off your son with a shilling. But if you're determined—hem!—what about the pictures? You have a very valuable collection, sir." Crusty invalid: "Oh, drat the pictures! Leave 'em to the blind asylum!"—Punch.

—A traveler, being at a coffee house with some gentlemen, was largely drawing on the credulity of the company. "Where did you say all these wonders happened, sir?" asked a gentleman present. "I can't exactly say," replied the traveler, "but somewhere in Europe—Russia, I think." "I should rather think it a-ly," returned the other.

—An economical man has discovered what he is pleased to term a bedroom electric light. It consists of a salt cod-fish nailed up against the wall where the light can shine upon it all day. The phosphorus absorbs the light, and the two go into partnership and illuminate the room all night. Thus we are taught how for a mere twenty-five cents we may dispense with that grinding monopoly known as the gas company.—Puck.

Minnie Hauck's Dog.

As Miss Minnie Hauck, the singer, who arrived in New York from Europe yesterday, was leaving the steamship pier, her dog, a pretty poodle, was stopped by a Custom House Inspector: "You can not take the dog along yet, Madam. You will have to wait until the declarations are made out." "Why?" "I must find out if that dog is on the list." Several of the gentlemen remonstrated. Mr. Smith E. Lane, the Park Commissioner, said: "Why, you don't want the ladies to wait in the rain on account of the dog?" The Inspector insisted, but Miss Hauck, who led the dog by a string, slipped it from his collar, blew a silver whistle, and the dog started off at full speed, and was soon out of sight. "He is a Yankee," she said, "and is only returning to his native land."—New York Dispatch.

A Strange Notion.

A young man in Copenhagen was arrested for trying to set his employer's house on fire. He had made two attempts, but in both cases the fire was put out before much damage was done. He explained on the way to the station that he had read a story of a young man who was taken into partnership by his employer, and allowed to marry his daughter, as a reward for rescuing the employer's children from a burning building. So, although he had already a good place, and was well liked by his employer, he tried the experiment, but with no success. His employer, so far from appreciating his motives, had him sent to jail for a fortnight, and he will have no place when he gets out. The wonder is that such an idiot ever got employment or good pay anywhere.—Exchange.

FOR SALE.

HAVING determined to go west I now offer for sale my entire stock of

The Fall and Holiday trade is now just on us, and an early buyer will get all the benefit therefrom. In the meantime I shall sell goods at retail and wholesale at almost cost.
